Ranger on Target—This is a photograph of the lunar surface taken by the Ranger 7 spacecraft prior to its impact on the moon July 31st. The area shown is about one and two-thirds miles on a side. The smallest craters are about 30 feet in diameter and 10 feet deep. Some of the large craters are about 300 feet in diameter.

Family Grieves—Gust Carlson, father of Dr. Paul Carlson, medical missionary slain by rebel troops in the Congo, dabbed at his eyes during a news conference in Los Angeles on November 24. He is flanked by his daughter and another son.

New Teen-Age Queen—Smiling Carolyn Mignini, 17, of Baltimore was crowned the new Miss Teen-age America of 1965 in Dallas on November 13.

National Events in Review—1964

Cards are the Winners—Roger Craig leaped on a group of teammates surrounding the pitcher Bob Gibson moments after the last out in the seventh World Series game won by the Redbirds over the Yankees, 7-5, in St. Louis.

I'm the Greatest—Cassius Clay whooped it up with his handlers after he won the world heavyweight title in Miami Beach in February. He was credited with a technical knockout of Sonny Liston when Liston failed to answer the bell for the seventh round.

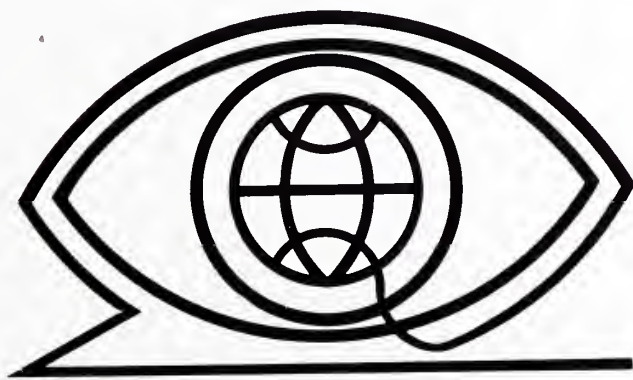

Alaskan Quake—A whole line of cars rested about 20 feet below street level on a main thoroughfare in Anchorage the day following the disastrous earthquake on March 27.

The Four Arts

It has been emphasized often that the general educational aim of Quincy College is to train its students in the art of living. We realize more and more the position of Quincy college in the modern world of changing ideas, and here renew its declaration of purpose.

The Art of Self Knowledge . . .

consists in the cultivation and organization of the intellectual life, It aims not at miscellaneous information but at truth as a vital and energizing factor in human conduct. In the spirit of St. Francis, it connotes the idea, "to see life steadily and to see it whole."

The Art of Self Expression . . .

consists in the development of personality, which implies the unfolding of individual traits and talents into patterns likely to reveal one's better self to others. It strives to develop leadership, and its purpose is to form the cultured gentleman and gentlewoman.

The Art of Self Control . . .

consists in the training of the will, the building of character. It makes for consistency of effort to control unworthy urges. Its product is a disciplined mind, schooled to conquer evil with good. Throughout their stay at Quincy College, students learn that self-control is a key factor which motivates prominent members of our society.

The Art of Self Support . . .

consists in the application of the arts to the business of gaining a livelihood, part and parcel of the art of living. The outcome is a skilled mind and hand, ready to take part effectively in the world's work after the example of St. Francis, who labored and wished others to do the same.

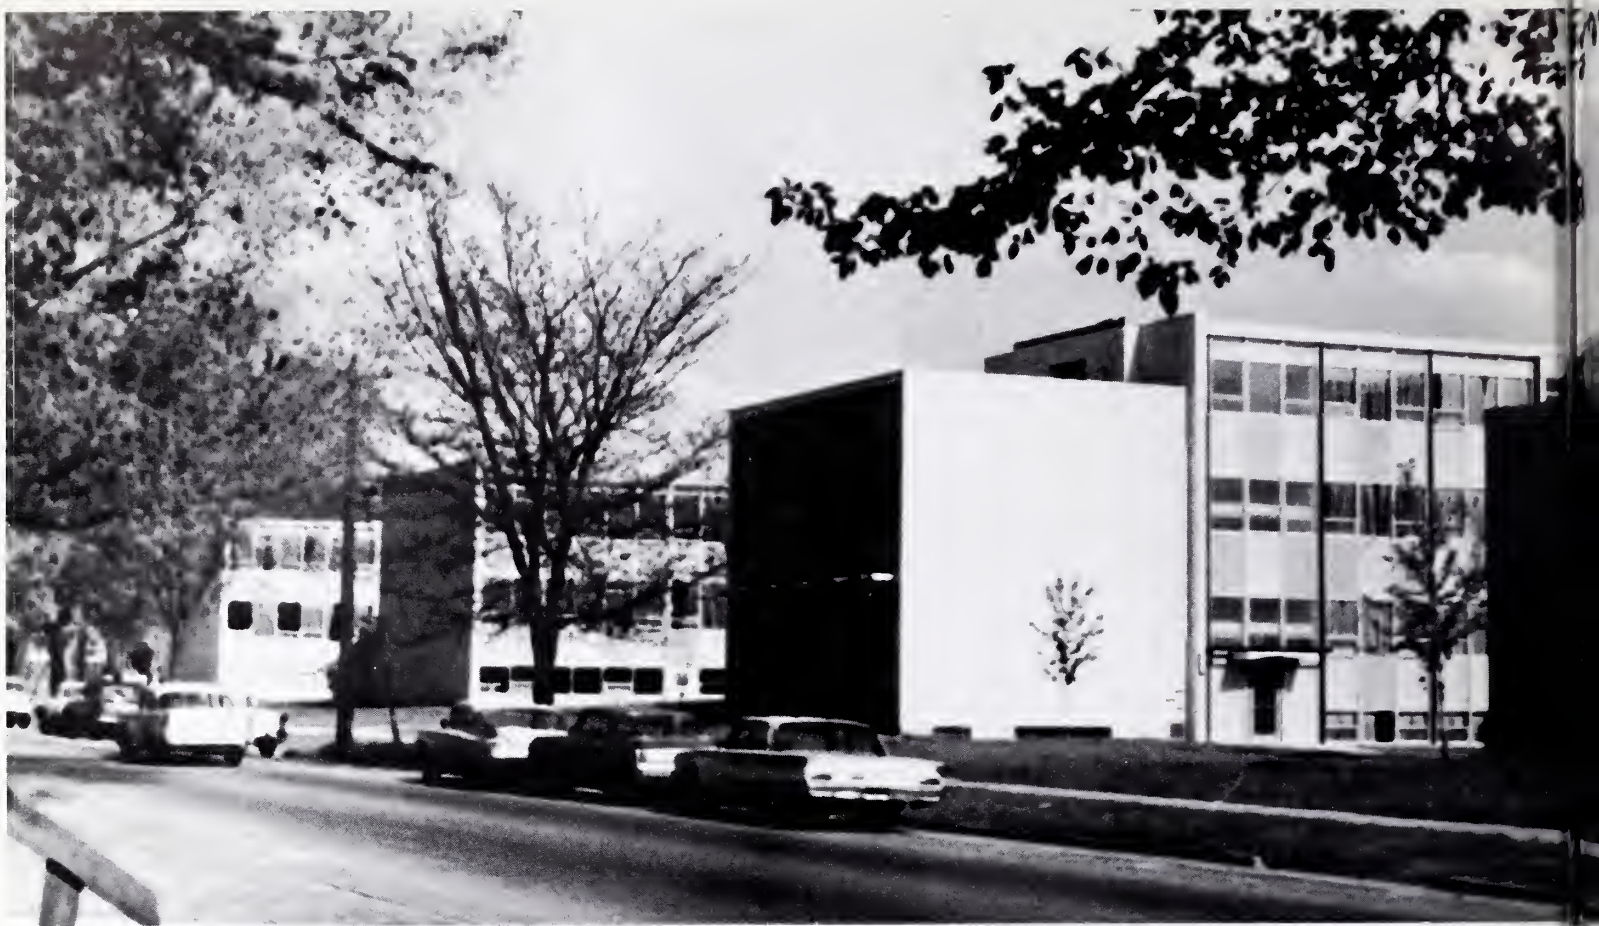

Sometimes during the winter season, the new five-winged ranch style Augustine Hall, housing 200 male students, had to brace itself against the cold and snow . . .

. . . But inside, the students, two per room, enjoyed these private, comfortable facilities for study and rest.

The new complex of buildings within a few minutes walk of the college classrooms, gives the Quincy College coeds an up-to-date, classy home away from home.

The formal parlor in Centennial hall has an atmosphere of sociability and relaxation, with its large fireplace in the center of the room.

Jeannette Brooks and Marilyn Dieker found that their well-equipped kitchen added to the good life in Senior Hall.

Linda Render, like other college girls, enjoyed showing her parents the comfortable room she shared with a room-mate in new Centennial Hall.

The artistically decorated chapel—central source of inspiration.

Stately Stillwell Hall provides comfortable and spacious living for the upperclassmen.

Mart Heinen Memorial gymnasium is located within a few steps of the main building.

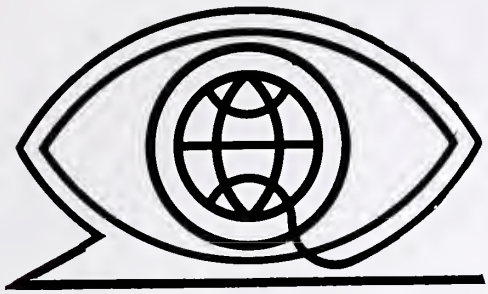

Solano Hall has been a good home for men students through the years.

Whether it be spring or winter on the campus—the college image remains the same: a pleasant informality between students as they strive to fill their minds and hearts with the ingredients of a full, balanced existence.

"Would you seek an education at Quincy College? Remember that a part of education consists in developing the ability to get an idea, to express that idea, and to defend that idea."

MENTAL LIFE

The dean's assembly was the introduction to college life for over 400 Freshman.

First Days Were Hectic

Mark McMurrough and Michael Golden gave a hand to Brother Bede in the bookstore as new students acquired their texts.

A fresh image of Quincy College was seen this year when over 400 Freshmen, the largest new class in the history of the college, saturated the campus. The 106th school year started also with an additional 15 faculty members, to give proper academic service to the overflow of students.

Jane Riordan, Margaret Whitney, and Bernadette Wiggli after concluding their registration.

Talent and Training Were Blended by Art Students

Father Thomas found time to give some artistic hints to Sheila McCauley while she reproduced a sketch of a human figure.

The Fine Arts Department provided an artistic image on the Quincy College Campus with two superb Art exhibits consisting of about seventy pen and conte drawings and about thirty paintings.

The displays were ideally located in the Social Hall and on the fourth floor of the main building during the annual "Parent Weekend". Of these, outstanding works of graduating senior Thomas Novak brought highest attention.

In addition to the exhibits, the Art students decorated the Social Hall with oil paintings and other wall-affixed art pieces. Of these, some of the talented creations of graduated students remain as a remembrance, both of the student and of the College.

Judith Buckholt posed back-to-back with Diane Cistaro while Art students used their skills to reproduce the canvas images.

College Image Was Amplified by Sight and Sound

Each Sunday morning, the Sacrifice of the Mass according to the new liturgy, was telecast by channel 10 for the local viewing area. Father Philibert Hoebing, O.F.M., college chaplain, above, often was celebrant. This program was directed by College speech instructor Father George McDevitt O.F.M.

Bill Early handled a good measure of the engineering duties of WWQC, aiding Greg Colburn.

Each Sunday morning throughout the year at 7:00 A.M. the "Quincy College Hour" was aired over WLS Radio, Chicago, Illinois, and over WGEM, Quincy, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 6:30 P.M. Father Donald Werr, O.F.M., with Bob Joye, WGEM announcer, above, originated the program.

Greg Colburn, Father George and Bill Early, right, were the mainstays of the Quincy College radio station WWQC.

Revived after several years of inactivity, WWQC piped into the social hall, cafeteria, and student union the beautiful FM music from Radio Station WTAD-FM in Quincy, throughout the day. Special other programs by the students including the "Kathy Payton Show", "Contemporary Jazz" with Dick Petrash, "Around the Campus" with Jim Langen, "Campus Sports" with Barry Wiscons, "Broadway Show Tunes" with Michael Hutmacher, "World of Folk Music" with Diane Becker, "Modern Folk Ways" with Gary Geer and Neal Smelser, "Music As You Like It" with Greg Colburn, filled out the much appreciated entertainment medium.

The College Station is a member of the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System.

Seminar Gave Lessons in Tax Savings

J. Patrick Rooney, president, went over last minute details with George King before addressing the delegates.

Father Gabriel consulted with Mr. Jim Buntin, local businessman, between sessions.

The Tax Saving Seminar at the college on February 9, was directed and performed by Executive Systems Inc., professional management consultants, it consisted of four major lectures plus a question and answer period.

The seminar proved to be of great aid to the students and local businessmen who attended. They learned that "There is no magic to tax planning and it can be made simple enough to devise one's own master plan. Tax savings over many years provides the money upon which to retire or reinvest in one's own firm."

Mr. William Ausman and Dr. Oliver Sarosi reviewed some Tax facts, following one of the floor discussions.

George Daniels, right, oboe virtuoso, as he awaited a cue while blending tones with violin instructor, Shirley Meyer.

Pamela Schmitt became quite an expert in clarinet playing during her college career.

Kenneth Kloweit's senior violin recital was hailed as a work of art.

The facial expressions of the choral members evidenced their efforts to harmonize and blend together.

Robert Koper, Instructor, and Senior Barbara Hess, often accompanied student musicians in their performances.

Known for their pleasing singing voices were, l to r, Pamela Sherman, Janice May, and Kathleen Blazel.

Father Gabriel, president, took an active interest in the program of the college musicians.

Anthony Castro, senior, who earned a traineeship in Anatomy at the University of Florida, prepared himself well during his college years. The above picture was taken as Castro was preparing a fish gill tissue for microscopic examination in a research project to determine the effect of water pollution.

John Lundeen, planning on a career in Biology education, had to identify often organisms in a fresh water plankton.

Interest Continued to Mount in Biological Studies

Continued growth has been the keynote in the Department of Biological Sciences. A record number of Freshmen chose to major in biological sciences, physical therapy, and medical technology. Next year's enrollment looks yet brighter.

An expanded program of student assistantships increased the efficiency of Freshmen Laboratory instruction. Faculty and student research projects, some supported by grants, involved a variety of studies in botany, zoology, and microbiology.

Nearly all of the department's graduates, including those of this year, have accepted professional positions or entered graduate and professional schools for advanced degrees.

Frater Louis Jacobs, O.F.M., Sister Ambrose Quinn, O.S.F., Charlotte Finley, Mary Duesterhaus and Carl Koch consulted over points of an anatomy dissection in the vertebrate morphology laboratory.

Laura Stenger, accepted as a Peace Volunteer to teach science in the Philippine Islands, took manometric readings in plant physiology research projects, as part of her college training.

Instructor George Schneider demonstrated a bio-chemical technique as Richard Winkeljohn looked over his shoulder.

The Mart Heinen award, for top athlete-scholar, was presented to Thomas Brumleve, right. Frank Hornich, president of the Physical Education club, made the presentation. Brumleve's name has been added to the engraved giant trophy in the gymnasium.

Awards Went to Top Athletes

Honored in an all-college assembly in the social hall were the members of the Hawk soccer, basketball, tennis, and baseball squads, and the cheerleaders. They were given letters, sweaters, jackets or blankets, depending on the number of varsity awards received previously.

Special recognition was paid John Runde and Michael Bertani, who were named by their teammates as most valuable basketball and soccer players.

Coaches Roger Francour, John Ortwerth, and David Costigan briefly reviewed the teams' seasons as they gave out the awards, and Miss Ann Hawk presented letters and the other awards to the cheerleaders.

Named to the district 20 N.A.I.A. all-star teams, were Michael Bertani, Michael Villa and James Prow of the soccer team, and John Runde, Amon Evans, and Sam Stampley of the cage Hawks.

John Runde was honored for being the leading scorer on the basketball team and congratulated by athletic director and basketball coach John Ortwerth.

Seniors Won New Honors

Scholastic awards were gained by, FRONT, Dorothy Pyzynski from John Carroll University in History, Kathleen Convery from the University of Hawaii in Genetics, Karen Griep from Rosary College in Library Science, and REAR, by Anthony Castro from the University of Florida in Anatomy, David Weseman from Texas Midwestern University in English, Thomas Ehlman from Marquette University in Business Administration, Leo Knueven from the University of Dayton in History, Paul Brown from the University of Chicago in Business Administration and Raymond Struyk from Washington University in Economics.

Accepted as Peace Corps trainees were, l to r, Mary Zimmerman for Tanzania, Konnie Jo Kuhlman for the Dominican Republic, Ronald Tuholske for the Dominican Republic, Laura Stenger for the Philippines, Paul Tanna for Honduras, and Sandra Ploof for Ethiopia.

The chance to join Military officers ranks upon graduation was given to l to r, Charles McClain for training in the Navy, Laurence Woods for immediate commissioning in the Marine Corps, Mark McMurrough for training in the Army, and William Bultas for training in the Navy.

Third Order of St. Francis Reflected Spiritual Image

The Third Order of St. Francis Fraternity opened the academic year with discussions on "White Collar Crimes" in bimonthly meetings over breakfast on Sundays in the reserved section of the Cafeteria. As the year went on, guest speakers were invited to talk on the local racial problems of Quincy. Two of the speakers were Richard Thompson ('57), instructor at Quincy Junior High School and George Lewis, Chairman of Quincy Human Relations Commission.

The spiritually-bent organization also sponsored a service program of working with underprivileged children of local schools and in recreation centers of the community in a spirit of Christian leadership.

In April, Father Philibert Hoebing, moderator, yielded his position to Father Camillus Vahl after serving for eight years. A picnic was programmed at Wyaconda State Park, across the Mississippi River in LaGrange, Missouri, to provide a suitable social activity in conclusion of a successful year.

The activities of the organization have been continued through the summer by local students and fraternity members in hosting the annual Third Order of St. Francis Youth Congress, held here on campus and sponsored by the Federated Provinces of the Third Order of St. Francis during the week of August 16 to 19, 1965. This year's theme was "Tertiary Youth Commitment to Christ".

Thomas Schmitz returned to his pew, having been invested as a Novice of the Third Order of St. Francis.

Father Philibert Hoebing, performing investiture ceremonies in the College Chapel, was assisted by John Jennetten, club Prefect, Daniel Menke and Dennis Woods.

After Investment, Frank Kordek, Thomas Schmitz, William Coolbroth, Charles Cici and Michael Mehan meditated while Roseann Dreiling awaited Investiture.

The faithful college bus (and also the tireless bus chauffeur, Brother August Bieg, O.F.M.) was always on hand for trips to nearby shrines, for the Third Order fraternity.

Father Elias Koppert, O.F.M., left, and Father Mark Hegener, O.F.M., right, served as the Third Order provincial visitor and minister, respectively, this last year.

The outstanding college achievements of these eighteen Quincy College students have been recognized by "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges."

They were chosen according to standards set up by the Student Senate and approved by a faculty committee. Eligibility requires a grade average of 3.0 for juniors and 2.5 for seniors plus a minimum number of activities points accumulated during at least four consecutive semesters at Quincy College.

These men and women have served the college well, in all fields of student endeavor.

Community Chapel Dedicated

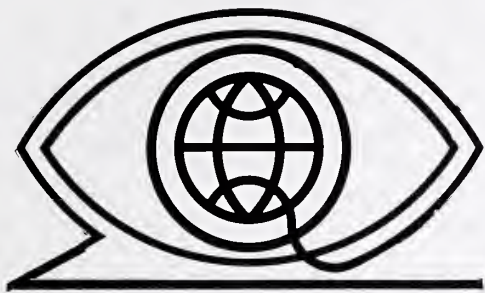

The new community chapel was dedicated on Dec. 18, 1964 by the Most Rev. Ambrose Pinger, O.F.M., D.D.

The new marble altar and furnishings were consecrated as a memorial to the parents of Father Philibert. The three tiers of seating for 75 were dedicated to Oscar and Eda Huck.

The marble altar with hanging cross was constructed under the direction of Father Thomas Brown, O.F.M. The rug about the altar is a striking shade of light blue. An all-bronze tabernacle with heavy bronze candleholders is in keeping with the new liturgy.

The indirect lighting is an artistic touch. Along with the stained glass windows, it radiates a glowing color to the interior. The community Mass is celebrated in this chapel each morning.

Fathers Philibert Hoebing, O.F.M., and John L. Ostdiek, O.F.M., assisted the Bishop in the solemn ceremony.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Hootenanny at Centennial Hall

One of the most effective means of drawing the students together at the start of the year was the Hootenanny held on the grounds of the women's residence hall.

One student remarked after the gala evening. "I was starting to get a little homesick, but this Hootenanny was just the medicine that I needed."

Beverly Bozick led her little group of enthusiasts in an old folk song.

The parlor of Centennial hall was also partially filled with socializing students during the Hootenanny.

L. to r. Nancy Gentile, Judith Maxson, Mary Vinton, Ernest Hoelterhoff and Michael Hill, participated while seated comfortably on the wall in the residence yard.

George Ratajik and Norine Miller set the pace with their interpretation of the twist.

Circle "K" Has First Dance of School Year

There's always a scramble among organizations to sponsor the first dance of the term. Circle K won out this past year, and prepared the upper level of the gymnasium for the "September Swing." A large and gay crowd of students attended and exhibited all the latest twist and turns.

Leita Perko and Caroline Miller could hardly wait to get into action.

Susan Postle in a pensive moment.

Dennis Galligani and Dan Mekemson put identification marks on Rita Sullivan and all others as they arrived for the dance.

The "Jaguars" furnished the music for the evening.

Vice Presidential Republican candidate Representative William E. Miller used the facilities of the college gymnasium for one of his campaign speeches.

Pulse of Elections Felt Here

Don Schonhoff, college Young Democrats president, conducted a rally in the social hall.

Joyce Kirchgessner, and in the background Judith Horan, joined in the local rally.

American Spaghetti Italian Style

Served by Chi Rho

Chi Rho, CoEd service club on the campus, served a delicious Italian dinner for the students in St. Francis school cafeteria in late Fall.

The receipts of this social event furnished housing for the two Japanese scholarship students, Kiyoko Toyama and Akiko Tanaka, in the women's residence hall. The general chairman was Judith O'Radnik, Mary Jo Kendall handled the tickets, Joyce Kirchgessner was in charge of decorations, Constance Larabee directed the servings and Carol Parisi guided the kitchen workers.

Other projects of service, such as general school hostesses, registrars for college seminars, and tour guide leaders, were contributory to the college public relations program.

June Ozarowski expertly dished out generous portions to over 400 college students.

Behind the scenes, Katherine Kordek, Janet Waterkotte, Bruce Wright, and Susan Waterkotte prepared the ingredients for the dinner.

Gayety Prevailed at Fall Homecoming

The above six homecoming queen candidates were chosen by room-to-room nominations in the residence halls, and by ballot in the social hall for off-campus students. From l to r, Mary Ann Dickes, Catherine Kordek, Denise Hanlon, Donna Nies, Celia Kuzmickus and Mary Ann DeLio.

Richard Petrash was master of ceremonies for the program of speeches given by the candidates. Above are three of the anxious coeds, Catherine Kordek, Celia Kuzmickus and Donna Nies.

Robert Schoen and Thaddeus Oswowski were anxious coaches of the "Powder puff" games.

The second annual "powder puff" football game was actually a double-header this year. In the first contest, the freshmen trampled over the sophomores, and in the second contest, the juniors edged out the freshmen. The cheering section was loud and the laughs were many.

Kathleen Bergan to the left, and Jo Ann Murphy and June Ozarowski above were three of the bunnies for the Friday Evening entertainment.

The key-club dance in the basement was a new creative idea; elaborate decorations provided the desired atmosphere for the evening of fun.

The general theme, arranged by the Fine Arts Club, of the homecoming dance was "Paris In the Fall."

Barbara Pritch and William Morrisroe enjoyed their first college homecoming dance.

Andrea Gallagher and Michael Hill between dances.

Carol Parisi and last year's graduate, James Hallberg, got together for the big evening.

The creative fountain and obelisk formed part of the beautiful decorations.

Male and Female Vied For Best Dressed Honors

The winners, Casey Jones and Mary Sue Coesfeld, pause a moment near the new faculty residence.

Each college organization nominated one male and one female to compete in the ninth annual "Best Dressed" contest. The staff members of the Mockingbird, women's residence halls newspaper, selected the best dressed girl on the campus from the nominees, and also added the "best dressed man" to stimulate a more original approach to male wearing apparel on the campus. The general idea behind the contest was "to show that being well-dressed and well-groomed is an integral part of an education that develops the well-rounded mind."

The Annual St. Patrick's Day Dance

. . . overwhelmed the decision of this year's Queen of the Irish. Bridgett Barker, was crowned by Kathleen Blazel, last year's St. Patrick's queen and reigned as the 1965 Queen. The court of attendants were: Frances Ann Johnson, Catherine Kordek, Mary Sue Coesfeld, Celia Kuzmickus and Jane Riordan.

The Circle K Club sponsored the annual event with considerable success in the Memorial Gymnasium, as one of the largest contingents of students who enjoy the social life, jam-packed the distinctively decorated athletic arena.

William DeLorenzo and Barbara Ann Pritch attempt the new Irish Frug, or is it the Irish Twist? Nonetheless, the spirit of the Irish was presented in every dance.

Kiyoko Rose Toyama of Teramachi Kamikyo-Ku, Kyoto, Japan, in her custom apparel, drew all eyes while dancing to the Bird with Armand Trinitapoli. The Irish Feast appears to have even been felt in Japan.

Father Philibert Hoebing, O.F.M., spoke interestingly about the Philosophy of Ayn Rand.

First Friday Club Featured Guest Speakers

Charles McClain, Club president, introduced the Reverend Hugh Paton, pastor of the Lutheran Memorial Church, who gave a brilliant presentation on the "Ecumenical Spirit". Seen also are Judith Horan, Vice president, and Linda Render, Secretary.

Father Cosmas Herndel, O.F.M., who rejoined the faculty after a ten year absence, was the main speaker for the annual banquet. He described his experiences in working with drug addicts in Chicago.

The First Friday Club offered the students a monthly series of presentations, which well supplemented the formal learning of the classrooms.

Speakers and subjects included, in addition to those here pictured, the Reverend Victor Hermann, O.F.M., who spoke about seminary life; the Reverend George McDevitt, O.F.M., who delved into problems concerned with the motion picture industry; the Reverend Peter D. Holzer, O.F.M., who encouraged the students to become academic leaders, and the Reverend Pacific Hug, O.F.M., who pointed the way to mature personality development.

The club also featured a Lenten film festival based on Theodore White's prize-winning "The Making of the President".

Owen A. Anderson, executive vice president of Quincy's Chamber of Commerce, addressed the students on "Individual Responsibility".

David Ramberg, Midwest sales manager of the American Yearbook Company, opened the workshop with a lively talk on "Why Public Relations?"

Awareness of College Image Prompted Conference on Public Relations

The first annual Public Relations Conference was held this Spring at the college, with a good response from leaders of student organizations and community representatives.

In addition to the three lectures and discussions, forming the heart of the conference, a luncheon address was given by Father Pacific Hug, O.F.M., in which he spoke about the creative potential of public relations, pointing out that "creativity requires an inner silence and a sensitivity to problems as well as a fluency of ideas and a flexibility of thinking."

Father Gabriel Brinkman, O.F.M., college president, in welcoming the delegates, told them, "What we do, affects others and what others do, affects us. In proportion as we realize that all in the community rise and fall together to a great extent, the relationships within the community will become more harmonious."

The tone of the workshop was summarized by Father Donald Werr, O.F.M., director, when he said, "Public relations is really a way of life for an entire institution and behind it all is a philosophy of service."

John Curran, English instructor at the college presented an interesting analysis of the "Interpersonal Relationships of Public Relations" at the workshop.

Lecturer Spoke on Responsibility of Management

The subject of labor-management relations was treated extensively by Mr. B. P. Spann, vice president in charge of industrial relations for the Gardner-Denver Company, as a fitting climax to the year's business speakers' forum at the college.

In the heart of his address, Mr. Spann told the students of the business administration department that "the critical need today in industry is the cultivation of interest between employees and business, for both are headed for the same port, are propelled by the same favorable winds, and are buffeted by the same strong storms."

Mr. Spann touched on a number of facets of the labor-management relationship, offering mature solutions and giving sage industrial advice to the college upper-classmen who would shortly step into the world of business.

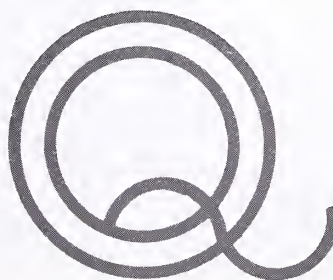

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Oliver Sarosi, director of the forum. In his opening remarks, Dr. Sarosi said that, "if an industry is a growing concern, it is difficult to single out individual factors as responsible for the success, because of the great interdependence of activities that are involved."

Following the lively lecture, there was a question and answer period from the floor.

The presentation was concluded by Mr. Frank Naggi, Business Administration department chairman, who expressed appreciation to Mr. Spann for his talk, for his efforts at the Gardner-Denver Company, and for his outstanding work as the first native Quincyman to hold the office of president of the State of Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

An informal lunch for "Doc" Spann, currently president of the State of Illinois Chamber of Commerce, was held in the College Cafeteria dining room.

Here Father Theophane offers the Chalice at his silver sacerdotal Jubilee Solemn High Mass, assisted by Father George McDevitt, O.F.M., deacon, and Frater Ernest Stahl, O.F.M., sub-deacon.

A Story of God's Love

Father Theophane Goett, O.F.M., celebrated his silver sacerdotal jubilee with solemn ceremonies at the college on May 10, the eve of the dedication of the new faculty residence. It was fitting that the two events came close to each other, for Father Theophane had the responsibility of supervising the physical construction of the eight-story structure, as well as the building of the new Our Lady of the Angels Seminary.

In his festive sermon, Father Pancratius Freudinger, O.F.M., said "This silver jubilee speaks of God's love and is a chapter in the greatest story ever told. Today we know that the heart of the jubilant is full of joy for he is a priest who has given himself to the service of others, and justly merits the tributes paid him."

Following the Jubilee Mass, Father Theophane was feted by his visiting relatives and clergy friends at a jubilee banquet held in the new residence dining hall. Responding to the speakers who lauded his efforts of the past quarter of a century, the jubilant remarked with feeling, "If you are satisfied with my work, please realize that it was possible only because of the persons who have been working with me and the grace of God."

After the Mass, Father Theophane received congratulations from the Reverend Vitus Duschinsky, O.F.M., pastor in Monroe, Louisiana. Over a hundred Franciscans attended the celebration.

The Reverend Pancratius Freudinger, O.F.M., who delivered the jubilee sermon, is here pictured with the Reverend Paschal Kensel, O.F.M., of Washington D.C. and Father Theophane.

The Very Reverend Dominic Limacher, O.F.M., Minister Provincial, reviewed his reliance on Father Theophane for the good judgement he showed as construction supervisor of three major projects, at the jubilee banquet.

Student Senate Showed Responsibility

Under the able leadership of David Frolick, of Quincy, the student senate took upon itself several herculean tasks, not the least of which were the arranging of the details of the Fall Homecoming and the Winter Parents' Week-end. Gallant efforts were also made to try to bring "big-name" entertainment to the campus.

The recent Spring elections swept William Scholten into the presidency of the senate. As the year came to an end, the newly elected leader could be seen, huddling with committees, and hurrying through the corridors with sheaves of paper in his hands. In Scholten's first senate meeting, which really was the final one of the semester, plans were announced for new and creative activities for September's Freshmen Week.

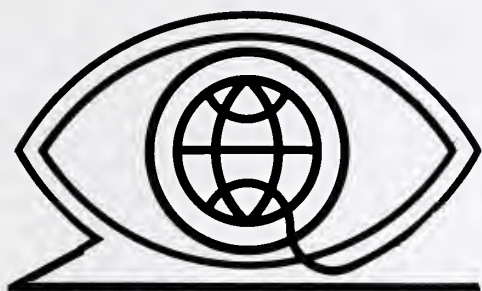

David Frolick, senate president, made personal appearances in the residence halls to glean student opinions.

The seriousness of his responsibility was reflected in the face of the senate president, David Frolick.

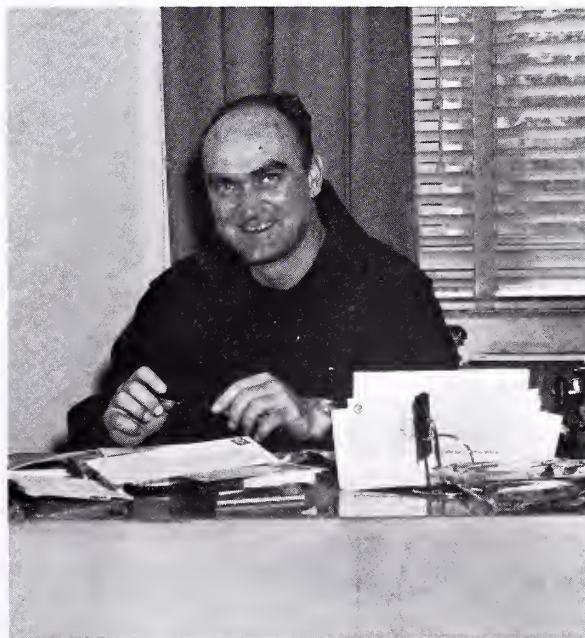

William Scholten, well known and active on the campus for three years, was the choice of the students to guide next year's senate as president.

"The principal agents in the education process are the students themselves. Their greatest needs in this task are dedicated teachers who demonstrate confidence and inspire imitation."

The Faculty in Action

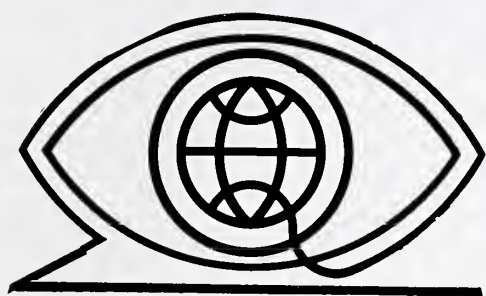

The music department faculty members really believe in what they're doing, as evidenced from this informal gathering, l. to r, Shirley Meyer, Charles Winking, Robert Koper, Dr. Lavern Wagner, James Brinkman and Hugh Soebbing.

Father Mel Doyle, O.F.M., coordinated the 1965 Tri State English Seminar, held on the Quincy College campus this spring. Here he speaks with two Sister delegates.

"Hard work, demanding tasks, and exhilarating fun are the keynotes of Quincy College's sports year. A new sport, and championships within reach, marked the year that was."

Quincy Wins Soccer Title

Team members munch on energy-filled oranges before game-time.

The bench players were just as tense as those fighting for victory on the field.

A free ball meant often a wild scramble for possession.

If one phrase could be used to describe the soccer season here at Quincy College, it would be "everything's coming up roses". 1964 was a season that shouldn't have been.

The Hawks faced the season, hoping at best, for a breakeven season. They ended it with a near perfect 8—0—1 record. The Hawks with their fine showing recruited many fans for a relatively minor sport, at least here in the United States.

As the season was drawing to a close the Hawks had captured the imagination of the administration, and most important of all, the student body.

Quincy capped its near perfect season in great fashion, winning the District 20 playoffs over such strong soccer powers as MacMurray and Lake Forrest. Other teams who fell to the Hawks during the '64 season included Aurora, Shimer, Rockford, Western Illinois, and Washington University from St. Louis.

Coach Roger Francour watched anxiously as the action unfolded before his eyes.

James Prow and Michael Bertani were elected co-captains of next year's team.

While the Hawks' success was due to team effort, they were not without their share of individual stars. Named to the all-district team were such standouts as Michael Bertani and James Prow, along with the Hawks' leading scorer, Michael Villa. Kenneth Husted, goalie on the Hawks, received honorable mention. Later on, at the awards dinner it was announced that the Hawks' squad members had named senior halfback, Michael Bertani, as their most valuable player. Seniors, Bertani and Prow were elected co-captains, while Daniel Negele was selected as the most improved player of the season.

Cagers Set Five Records

Five team records and one individual record were broken as the Hawks finished the 1964-65 basketball season with a record of 15 wins against 13 losses.

The new team records are: most field goal attempts in one season, 2274; most field goals scored in one season, 924; best free throw percentage for one season, .707; most points scored in one season, 2335; and best scoring average for a season, 83.4 points per game.

Forward Tom Brumleve's .474 field goal percentage represented a new individual high for a Quincy cager. Tom shattered the previous high of .468 set by former Hawk great Leo Binz during the 1960-61 season.

At various times during the course of the season the team became so awed with their offensive power that they forgot that there were two ends to the basketball court. This accounts for our rather lackluster defensive statistics.

Our opponents' averaged 79.2 points per game against us. This was not too hard to accomplish since they connected on .426 of their field goal attempts—many on easy lay ups.

The Hawks played 85 consecutive games covering four seasons without allowing 100 points to be scored against them until they played "give away" with Washington U. and Lewis. The Bears of Washington U. racked up 113 points against us and three days later the Lewis Flyers, being not as greedy as Washington, scored "only" 111 points against our so-called "tough defense". The 113 points scored by Washington U. were the most points ever scored against Quincy. What price Defense?

Center John Runde became only the third Hawk in history to score at least 500 points in a season. Big John scored an even 500 points on 195 field goals and 110 free throws. He averaged 17.9 points per game. Following John Runde in the scoring department were Amon Evans, 13.9; Sam Stampley, 13.9; Dewey Kalmer, 12.6; and Tom Brumleve, 9.6. Tom Brumleve shot .474 from the field and he was followed by John Runde, .439; Dewey Kalmer, .435; and Sam Stampley, .400.

Sharpshooting Tom Brumleve was also the leading free throw shooter as he hit on .822 of his attempts. Amon Evans and John Runde also had success at the charity stripe as they connected on .744 and .710 of their free throw attempts respectively.

Sam Stampley led the squad in rebounding with a per game average of 11.3. He was followed by John Runde who averaged exactly 11 rebounds per contest.

Father Gabriel presented "the most valuable player" award to junior John Runde, at the Christmas holiday tournament.

Senior Sam Stampley, caught in mid-air, closed a brilliant college basketball career this year, as did also star defensive guard Ed Hagenbaumer, seen at the right. Sharp-shooting Tom Brumleve, ball-hawking Fred Curtis and rebounding ace Ken Davenport, likewise concluded their four years of performance on the cage court.

Boasted of Record-Breaking Season

The 1965 Quincy College tennis team was the most successful squad in the history of the college. By capturing their last five matches, the Hawks were able to fashion an excellent record of twelve victories in sixteen decisions.

Coach Roger Francour's netmen defeated such tough foes as Parsons, Western Illinois, and MacMurray enroute to their record-breaking season. The double wins over arch-rival Western Illinois University were most gratifying for they represented the first time we ever defeated Western twice in a single season.

Senior Tom Brumleve and Jim Knepler, Juniors John Runde, Michael Lach, Tom Lawrence and Joe Ridder and Freshman Richard Hess formed the nucleus of Quincy's first winning net squad.

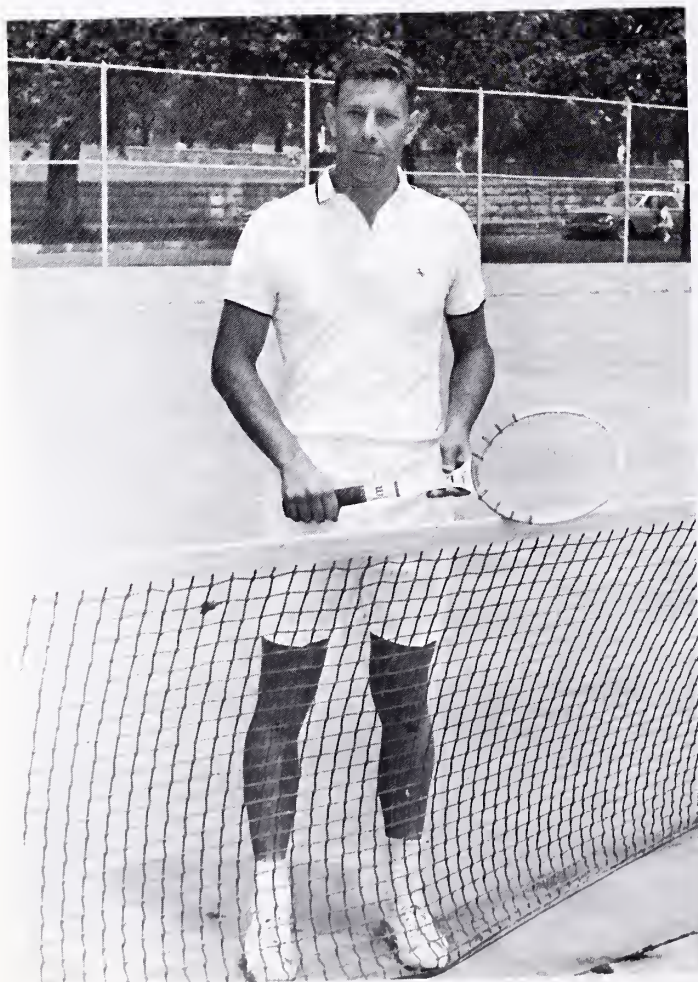

The Hawks opened the season by dropping their first two matches and then they captured their next seven matches before losing to tough Kirksville. After defeating Culver-Stockton the Hawks lost a close match with Parsons before launching their five game winning streak that concluded the season.

Thomas Brumleve poses briefly during practice with John Runde. Tom completed his fourth year on the team with remarkable success.

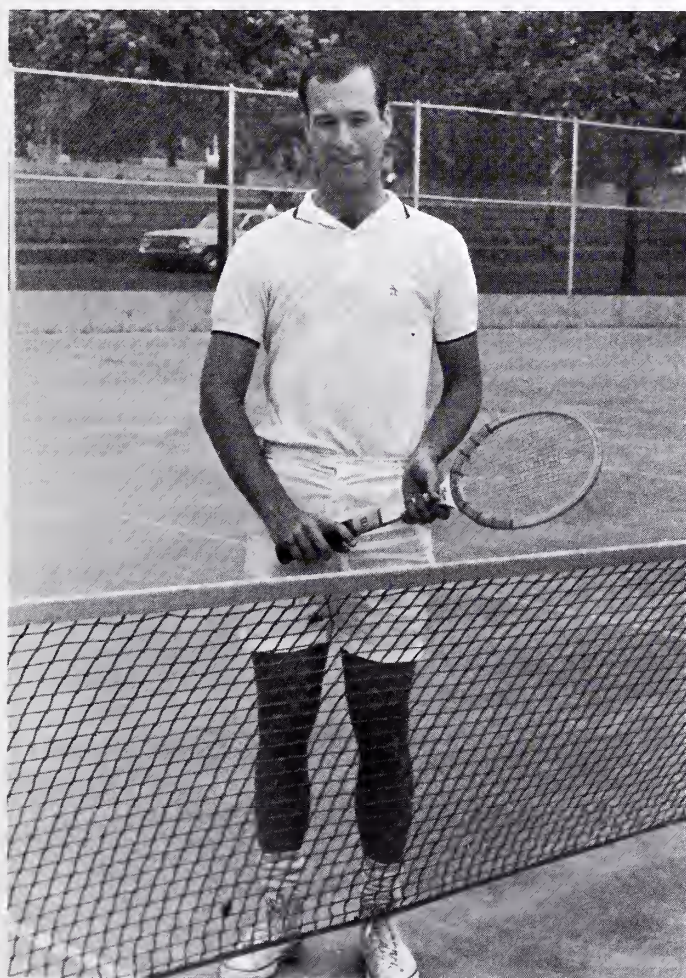

John Runde completed his third year on the team. With his past success, he is expected to provide another fine season in 1966.

Lawrence and John Runde. These men made possible Quincy's successful season.

Thomas Lawrence, joined his fellow team-mates for the first year of varsity competition. In looking forward to the 1966 season, Tom is expected to assist the team with his fine experience.

James Knepler, skillful in tennis-doubles, had his best year this season.

The Baseball Hawks Played with a Veteran Staff

Following the pattern set by the tennis squad, the Hawk baseball team also won its last five games to conclude a season which saw it win fourteen games and lose eight.

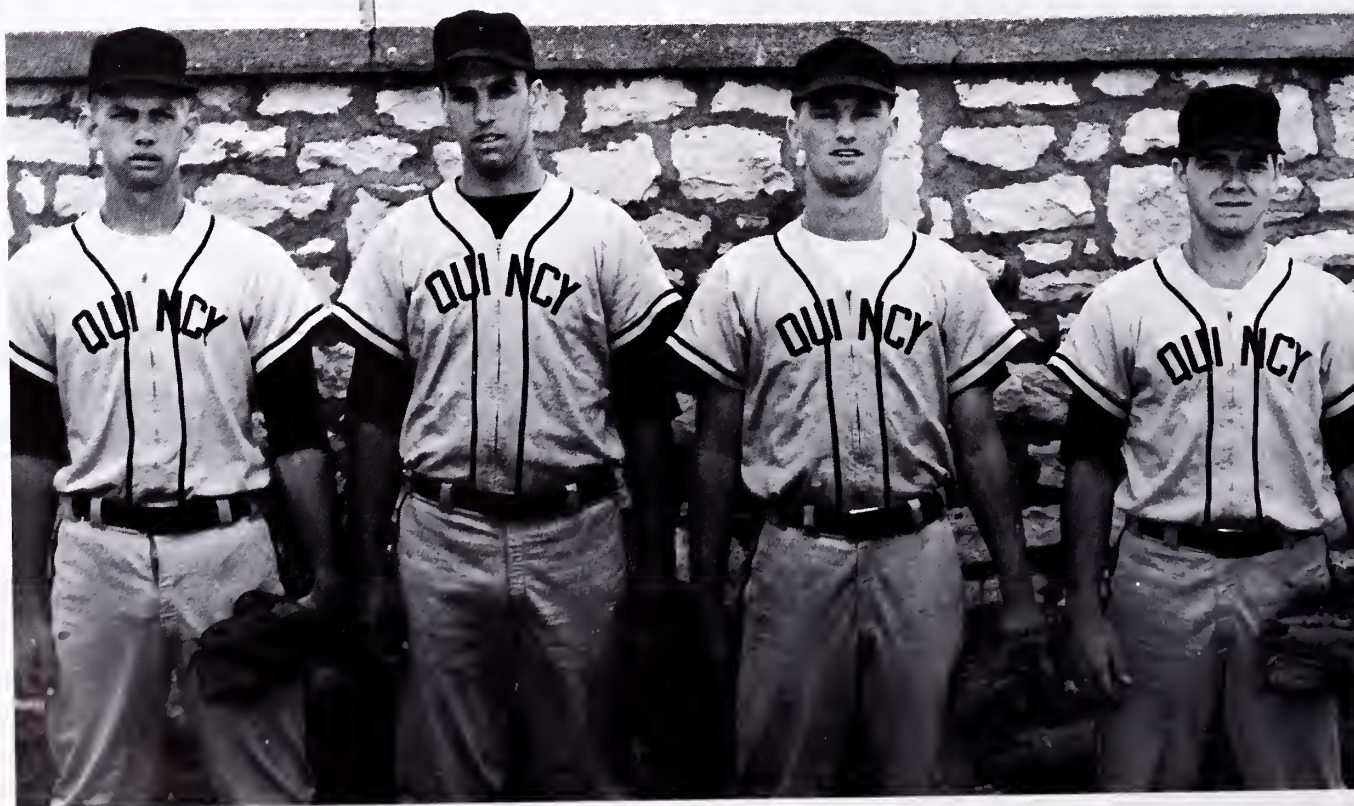

Paced by the fine pitching of Dennis Trame and Dennis Kruse and the heavy hitting of Duane Kalmer, Fred Curtis, and Roger Sheridan, the Hawks finished the season on a high note by winning ten of their last thirteen games.

The Hawks were involved in one of the most unusual oddities of the collegiate baseball season on their annual southern tour. Tennessee State completely outclassed our Hawks and defeated us, 19—3. Quincy, determined to make amends for the humiliating defeat, came back the very next day to defeat the same Tennessee State team by a score of 25—1! A most unusual turn of events, indeed.

Coach David Costigan is eagerly awaiting the 1965 season because the entire team is returning with the exception of Fred Curtis, Robert Neagle, and Bob Siebers. Coach Costigan feels with the experience gained this year coupled with excellent pitching fashioned by Dennis Kruse and Dennis Trame, and timely hitting of all-American prospect Duane Kalmer, the Hawks should field one of the better collegiate teams in the midwest next season.

What ever happened to it?

Though we no longer have it, the plane in this picture is a World War II, O-47 Observation Plane. In the early 40's, the college bought it from the government for fifty dollars and it was used in conjunction with a Civilian Pilot Training Program. To operate this program it was stipulated that the plane be in a non-flyable condition. Its predecessor, "Flying Jenny," was a World War I, two-seater, open-cockpit, bi-plane. It also was used in a ground school. Father Ehrhard Kuester, O.F.M., taught a number of courses using the O-47 as a demonstrator.

The civic minded image of the college has persisted to this day and in the last year was exemplified by the Quincy College Radio Hour, the Berrian School Project, Circle K's Aid to the United Fund, Chi-Rho's help to the Heart Fund, Catholic activities with deanery N.C.W.C., and the Western Illinois Division on Alcoholism, to mention just a few activities.

The selfless service of Quincy College continued to be a fresh inspiration to everyone.

Mostly Underclassmen

Mimi Middendorf and Diane Armstrong pondered the prospects of the final examinations.

Thomas Novak showed William Coolbroth the secrets of successful gaming.

How about this? Judith Buckholdt held not only the world, but herself in the palm of her hands.

Martin Stempniak, Sister Mary Salvator and Dennis Galligani caught informally during leisure hours in the cafeteria . . .

. . . While Larry Woods went about his daily chores with intent and vigor, just a few feet away.

Brother Clete explained matters in the business office to Julie Marchesi and Carol Schiola.

Judith Horan—always ready for a good, hard campaign.

Linda Render—ever effervescent in the public relations office.

Busy moment in Augustine Hall.

A relaxed moment in a tense soccer game.

This Is the Life

Students all proclaim that there just isn't anything like a gay picnic on a warm spring afternoon—a few hours of glorious freedom from books and academic tensions.

Relaxing in the sun. But Jane Higgins and Patricia Casey took along a few school books anyway, just in case . . .

Richard Petrash, Patricia Casey and William Morrisroe show the exhilaration of a gay afternoon on a picnic.

Folk-singing is a great way to release feelings and tensions—especially at a spring picnic.

Judith Buckholdt, Mary Ann Colangelo, Andrea Gallagher, Thomas Novak and Michael Crivello at the picnic.

Faculty member Ann Hawk joined John Trost, Pamela Sherman and Barbara Hess in a songfest.

Father George welcomed an occasional coffee break while directing the spring drama production.

What could be more fun than an old fashioned game of dart throwing at a campus carnival? "Nothing" said Thomas Brumleve, Earl Zastro and Mary Ann Dickes.

Dennis Zapletal saw to it that Mary Black could travel with ease and distinction, in the only covered wagon on campus.

At vacation periods, many Quincy resident students provided transportation to the train depot for their departing friends. Here, Donald Johannes, Donald Schonhoff and Theodore Ridder lingered as the train moved away.

The placing of directional signs in the city, making it easier to locate the college, was one of the many fine projects sponsored by Circle K during the year.

Campus Carnival Was Colorful

The Off-Campus Girls club sparked a dull May Saturday with a street carnival and dance; to judge by the enthusiasm of the participants, the affair was thoroughly enjoyed because of the creative efforts of the promotors.

Patricia Male and Catherine Costello enjoyed a Saturday afternoon of fun at the spring carnival.

Can this be Father Cosmas Herndel, former chaplain of Chicago's city jail? Sure enough—but he didn't seem sad about the whole thing.

Barbara Harris and Monte Campbell took a few minutes out from the carnival fun to munch a sandwich.

Students Haggled at "Maxwell Street" Sale

Douglas Wolfersberger, Bookstore manager, Brother Bede, and Carroll Howell set up the plans for the 4th annual bookstore sale.

Good, used books were on display for sale.

The fourth annual "Maxwell Street" sale of the college bookstore, was one of the best publicized events of the year; left-over and new merchandise were colorfully displayed in front of the bookstore—all sold at cut-rate prices. The only store in the state handling aspirins and sweatshirts and agreeing to keep your chickens and rabbits over vacation periods, gave the students a chance to do some old fashioned horse trading which could result in some savings.

Quincy's Mayor Wes Olson was on hand to make a few bargain purchases.

Gerald Baier, Robert Chew, Lawrence Czubernat and Robert Mele at the sale.

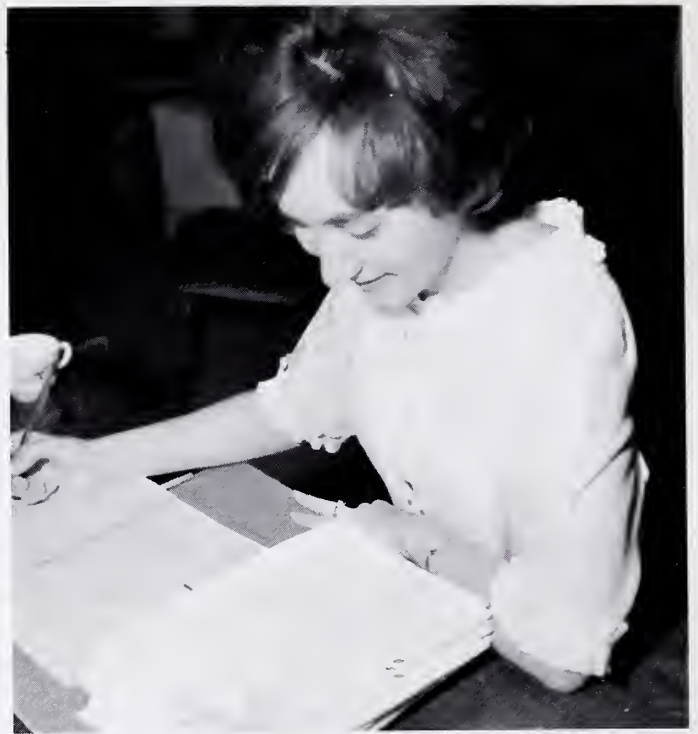

Hours of Study—Here, There, Everywhere.

Georgia Gustafson and Michael Crivello found studying together to be helpful.

Rea O'Neill found that the quiet of his own room in Augustine Hall was a boon to learning.

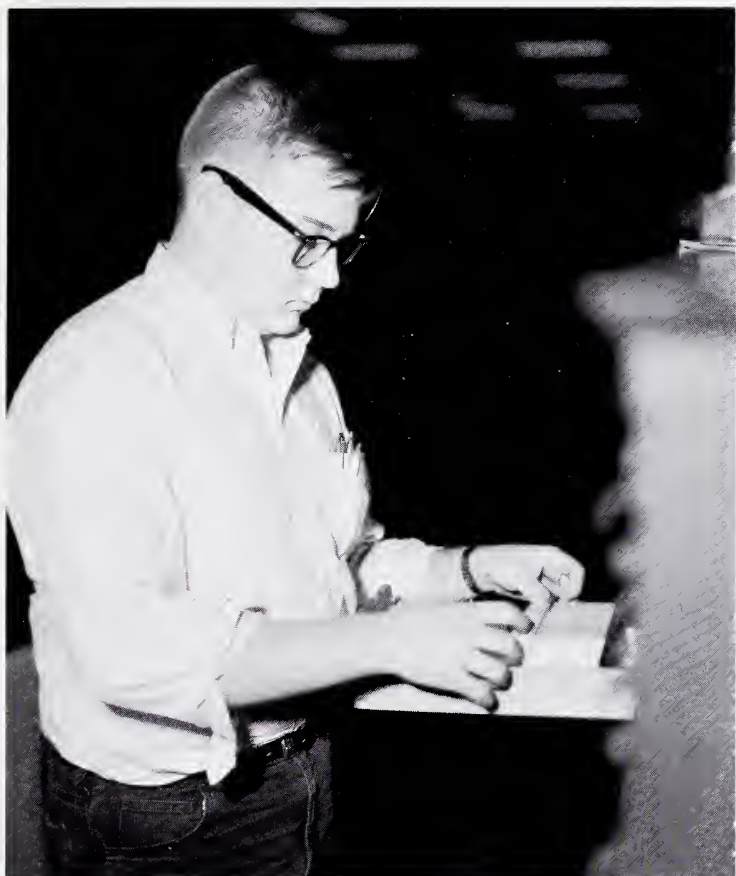

Carol Linkowski seemed like she was enjoying her experience with books and papers.

A coke break was always welcome.

William Payne was able to concentrate anywhere.

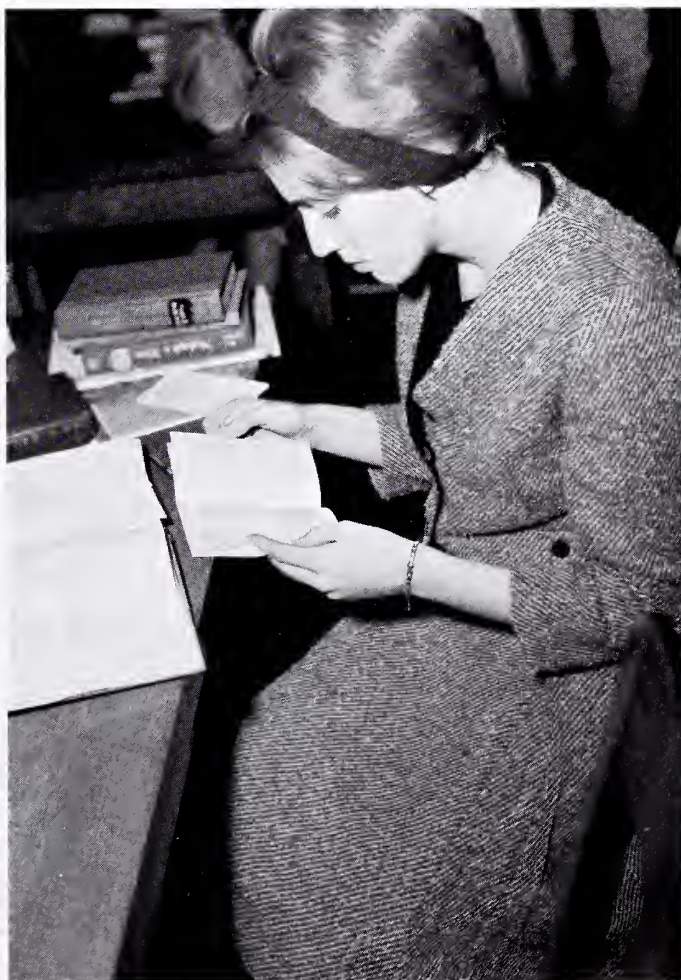

William Middleton appreciated the services of the library card index file in locating source material for in-depth studies.

Jeannette Brooks, often utilized the minutes between her appearances on the stage for play practice, to keep up with her studies.

Robert Novak searched the library stacks to get the exact books he needed for a particular research project.

Gloria Bain found the dual jobs of librarian and student absorbent of energy.

John Trost and Philip Ekholm were in a good mood as they packed their belongings—heading for a summer of work and relaxation.

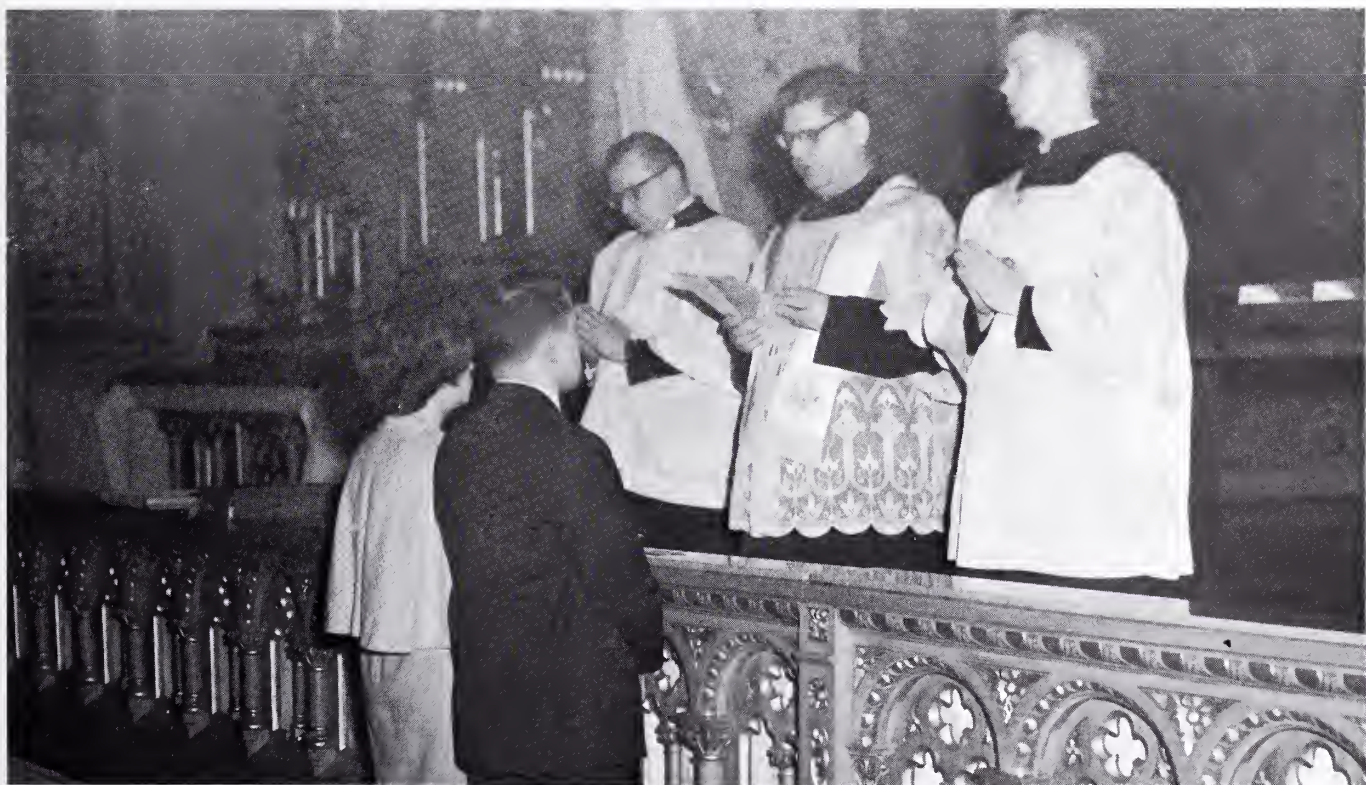

The men of Circle K listened to a critique of the year's activities.

Fred Keller found the convenience of close-by Augustine Hall to his liking.

Thomas Ehlman, right, was presented the Trophy for the first place International Award accorded the Circle K club. He left the underclassmen with an inspiring example of personal leadership.

One of the final acts of the year for Linda Render was her solemn engagement in the college chapel, before a summer marriage to Earl Terwische. At the communion rail are Irwin Koppenec, Father Donald Werr, OFM, and Thomas O'Meara.

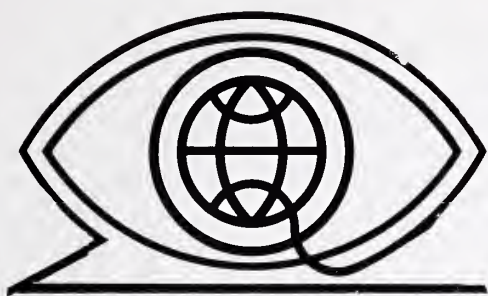

l to r, Alice Cantal, Judith O'Radnik, Carol Evans, Holly Meenan, Frances Johnson and Jeanne Koppes spent hours of their free time working at the Y.W.C.A.

Daniel Mckemson, like other students, appreciated the always warm welcome of Mary Kay Rubison in the college cafeteria.

Mary Jo Kendall and Donald Schonhoff enjoyed the social events of the college, as well as each other, during the year.

"The inexpressible value of the past four years of sound growth and accomplishment at Quincy College, has provided the foundations for the future which will permeate our lives."

Dorothy Pyzynski, '65

SENIORS

Like vigilant offspring, the senior class bears witness to the growth of Quincy College and to her Franciscan heritage. Throughout the last four years, the college has been a symbol of promise, faith, and vitality. It has pointed her bow toward the path of truth. Now the seniors turn toward the East, where the rays of hope and unlimited opportunity are ever present.

Commencement Was a Climax and a Beginning

Father Peter was the center of attraction of a group of seniors at the senior-faculty social evening. Seniors, l to r, Catherine McGinnis, Christine Jones, Sharon Mahoney, Patricia Feehery and James McNamara.

Senior Gary Geer and English instructor Thomas Dolan shared common interests at the social gathering.

Father Francis Jerome, Thomas Ehlman, Patricia Reibling and placement director Don Nicholson spoke of the days ahead.

Judith Ruck represented the senior women in her presentation at the graduation banquet.

David Frolick expressed appreciation in the name of the senior men at the graduation banquet.

Hugh Fitzgerald, associate professor of drama was a colorful master of ceremonies for the graduation banquet, which attracted about 500 persons.

Father Mel was in a happy mood as he addressed the gathered graduates and parents at the banquet. At least, 1 to r, Fathers Gabriel, Peter and Ronin enjoyed his after-dinner comments.

Miss Patricia McGrady, dean of women, gave an appropriate send-off to the seniors in her banquet talk.

The Baccalaureate low Mass, celebrated by Father Gabriel Brinkman, OFM, president, was held in the gymnasium this year to accommodate the large number of visitors.

The Rev. James Huck, J.C.D., pastor of Assumption church in Assumption, Illinois, was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree, before delivering the commencement address. Father Peter, dean, and Father Gabriel, president, invested Father Huck with academic robes.

Janet Kroencke is congratulated as she receives her college degree.

Anthony Castro, along with the other 153 graduates, received the coveted sheepskin from the college president, Father Gabriel, assisted by registrar, Brother Marvin Schulgen, O.F.M.

We'll close this volume on the run—for already people, places, and events have become memories. The intense relevance of the present almost excludes the relevance of what has been.

Great changes altered images, but even greater ones lie ahead. Though the walks are now quiet, the crowds gone, the residence halls and classrooms empty, and the faculty scattered—the academic environment will soon again be revived, and new people will produce new images.
